Guidelines for Web Posting of papers published in the Journal of the Acoustical Society of America (JASA) JASA Express Letters (JASA-EL) or Proceedings of Meetings on Acoustics

The Acoustical Society of America (ASA) grants to the author(s) of papers submitted to or published in the Journal of the Acoustical Society of America (JASA), JASA Express Letters (JASA-EL) or Proceedings of Meetings on Acoustics (POMA) the right to post and update the article on the Internet with the following specifications.

On the authors' and employers' webpages:

- There are no format restrictions; files prepared and/or formatted by ASA, AIP, or its vendors (e.g., the PDF, PostScript, or HTML article files published in the online journals and proceedings) may be used for this purpose. If a fee is charged for any use of the posted article, ASA permission must be obtained.
- An appropriate copyright notice must be included along with the full citation for the published paper and a Web link to ASA's official online version of the abstract.

On free-access E-print servers:

- Author-prepared files only may be used; files prepared and/or formatted by ASA, AIP, or its vendors (e.g., the PDF, PostScript, or HTML article files published in the online journals and proceedings) may not be used for this purpose.
- An appropriate copyright notice must be included along with the full citation for the published paper and a Web link to ASA's official online version of the abstract.

On the National Institutes of Health (NIH) PubMed Central and other funding agency repositories:

- Authors should indicate in the appropriate checkbox NIH funding of manuscripts at the time of submission in Editorial Manager. Upon acceptance of the article, it will automatically be deposited in final published form and associated metadata to PubMed Central (PMC). However, the full text of the article will not become available on PMC until one year after publication.
- For such articles for which the author has paid ASA's fees for open access publication of their JASA Express Letters article, ASA will notify the repository that they may post the Article upon publication by AIP on behalf of ASA and its transmission by AIP to the repository.
- Authors need not sign any additional Transfer of Copyright Agreement, other than the click-through copyright agreed to in the initial submission of the article to JASA in order to be fully compliant with institutional repository requirements such as those imposed by universities. Our agreement respects the spirit of the initiative toward self-archiving of material and supports the basic premise that authors have freedom to reuse their own work for scholarly, noncommercial purposes.
